

Your single life – May 10

Update on previous story

If you have been a Bronze member since February, you may remember an item in the newsletter called "Valentine's Day Rant" in which I highlighted an item on Close Up on TV One entitled "Why are you single?" prior to Valentine's Day.

The item was to promote a new book and was introduced by Mike Hosking saying 'relationship expert John Aiken reckons, if you are [single], there are 15...problem areas which might just explain why. In fact, if you are unattached, you are almost certain to fall into one or more of those categories.' .

I notice now - only three months later - that the same book is in Borders bookshop on Lambton Quay in its "3 for 2" section.
